

Plane Hits Empire State Building ... Fire Breaks Out

NEW YORK, July 28.—(P)—An Army bomber crashed through fog into an upper floor of the 102-story Empire State building today, set the tower of the building afire and scattered debris over a wide area, killing at least nine persons in the building.

At least two persons in the building were badly burned. Eleven floors of the building above and below the 86th floor of the towering structure were in flames and the spire of the building soon was enveloped in a vast, smoky, foggy screen.

Flaming gasoline and fumes poured into the building through a huge scar on the 34th Street side and a soldier who saw it said "it looked like a flame thrower in action."

Showers of broken glass, masonry and other objects flew into the air, and broken glass splattered into Fifth Avenue as far south as 29th Street.

The plane struck the building shortly before 10 A. M., and within a few minutes Mayor LaGuardia had arrived. Louis Petey, a guard stationed on the tower at the time of the crash, said there were a number of persons in the tower, but added, "I think I got them all down safely."

The first two injuries reported were those of Kay Oliver, an elevator operator, and John Mate. They were on the 79th floor and were reported badly burned.

Miss Nanette Morrison, on the 38th floor of a nearby building, said: "My windows face west and south and to the south I have a direct view of the Empire State building. I heard the plane heading south over Fifth Avenue and I could tell by the uneven sound of the engine and the tipping of the plane that the pilot was in trouble. That was when the plane flew past my west-facing window."

"When I looked south toward the Empire State building the plane had climbed a little. The pilot was trying to gain altitude and was tipping as though trying to bank."

"There was a terrific explosion when the plane hit. It looked as though the flash and flames from the explosion spread over four floors. The building is so obscured in smoke now (10:35 A. M., EWT) that I cannot tell if there are any flames."

Miss Harriet Wieskop, a clerk-typist for the ODT on the 63rd floor of the Empire State, said (Please Turn to Page Eight)

Back in 1909 you could buy oranges for a dime a dozen, porterhouse steak for 15 cents a pound and potatoes for 15 cents a peck.

Those facts were uncovered when Mrs. Bruce Hidy was cleaning out the drawer of an old washstand she bought. A food store advertisement was headed with the oranges at ten cents a dozen and wound up with a big meat value in black print.

Even taking into consideration the gradual rise of prices in proportion with wages, the difference in present day prices and those of 36 years ago is astounding. Taking meat, for instance:

Potatoes, 5 lb. peck	15c	33c

This seems to be a year for tall hollyhocks and during the past few days I have had three persons tell me that they have specimens of hollyhock stalks that are 12 feet or more in height, and most of the stalks have bloomed entirely to the tip.

Dr. Neil B. Jones has such a stalk: Mrs. Frank Littler also has a stalk over 12 feet in height and Mrs. H. D. Shankle, East Street, has a stalk 12 feet 2 inches tall.

It has been a wonderful season for hollyhocks, and a host of flower lovers have thoroughly enjoyed the riot of color provided by these old fashioned flowers.

While walking along up-town yesterday I dropped my lead pencil and, of course, the lead was broken out.

I tried to sharpen the pencil with my pocket knife, and was amazed to see what a poor job of sharpening I did, and how I missed the pencil sharpener which is always handy here in the Record Herald office or in other offices I visit during my rounds in obtaining news.

It has not been so many years since sharpening pencils with a pocket knife was the custom, but with the coming of the ever-handy sharpeners that fasten to a desk or other convenient place, sharpening a pencil by hand is almost a lost art.

Those miniature rock-gardens and bouquets, included in the flower exhibits at the Fayette County Fair, have attracted more attention than that of the big baskets of flowers, many of which in themselves are blue ribbon winners.

I am always fascinated by those miniature works of art, for some of them are really very artistic, and are worth giving special attention.

This year some of these miniatures were particularly well done, have been attracting a great deal of attention, and eliciting much favorable comment.

MANDEL TO RETURN TO ARGENTINA SOON

MONTEVIDEO, July 28.—(P)—Frederick (Fritz) Mandl, former Austrian munitions magnate, arrested by Uruguayan police on his arrival by plane from Buenos Aires, has decided to return to Argentina, officials said last night.

Juan Carbajal Victorica, Uruguayan minister of the interior, said he had long ago given orders for the arrest of Mandl "if and when he arrived in Uruguay."

Mandl was told by Police Chief Juan Carlos Gomez Folle to choose between leaving the country or submitting to a special court dealing with anti-Uruguayan activities, and risk being turned over to Allied powers.

SPECIAL SCHOOL TRAINS GIS FOR POSTWAR WORK

Regular University Is Set Up In England by Army; 300 Courses Offered

By HENRY JAMESON
SHIVENHAM, England.—(P)—The youngest "university" in the world—where GIs are given simulated officer status and called "mister"—has been set up by the U. S. Army in this picturesque little Wiltshire village of 700 population.

It is a full-fledged American university for service men and women ambitious to prepare for postwar professions and industries. As many as 4,000 at a time can go to college free of charge while awaiting their return home from Europe.

Shivenham University will be opened officially next Wednesday. A similar school will be opened at Biarritz, world famed French seaside resort city, about the middle of August.

The schools are part of the army's vast and unprecedented educational program designed to enable those whose education was interrupted to "get back in the groove" before they again become civilians. Summer course schedules already are in operation at the famous Sorbonne University and other specialist schools in Paris.

Courses to be taught will compare with those of average undergraduate colleges in the United States, said Brig. Gen. Paul W. (Please Turn to Page Three)

END OF CONFERENCE IS SEEN NEXT WEEK

Churchill's Defeat Is Calmly Taken in Stride

POTSDAM, July 28.—(P)—The Big Three conference neared its climactic stage today, and the conviction persisted that the final conclusions may be signed within the next few days.

Clement R. Attlee, Britain's new prime minister, was due back, accompanied by Ernest Bevin, his newly appointed foreign secretary.

There was no official announcement concerning the duration of the conference, but the feeling prevailed that it would be concluded some time next week.

Despite the surprise here at the overwhelming defeat of the Churchill government, neither the United States nor the Soviet delegations appeared to have been unprepared for that eventuality.

Ohio Girl Weds Soldier Who Found Lost Wallet

SANDUSKY, July 28.—(P)—A Bellevue, Ohio, miss who chaperoned her brother and his fiancée on a New York trip today married the Brooklyn soldier who pursued her through a lost wallet.

"While I was in New York about two years ago with Agnes (Polonski) and James, my brother, I lost my billfold," said Miss Myrtle Richards, an employee of the Plum Brook Ordnance works here.

"My wallet contained my identification and picture."

"Shortly after that Bill (Pvt. William Ruter of Brooklyn) wrote that he had found it. He started writing to me and I saw him for the first time a year ago last July."

The Rev. Joseph E. Maeder will perform the ceremony at the Immaculate Conception Church at Bellevue.

"I found the billfold while on furlough after several years' service in the Aleutians," said the groom. "I sent it back to Myrtle and suggested that we meet."

The pair said they plan to go to Tampa, Fla., where the groom is stationed with the ground crew of the air force.

3,000 WORKERS IDLE IN STRIKES IN OHIO

New Wave of Disputes In Vital Industries

By The Associated Press
Nearly 3,000 Ohio workers were idle today as the War Labor Board moved to curb an outbreak of strikes in automotive, rubber, steel and food products industries.

The state's largest walkout continued into its fifth day after 900 CIO-United Rubber Workers at the Pharis Tire and Rubber Co. of Newark voted Friday night to ignore a regional WLB order to return to work in a dispute over the suspension of 11 employees for alleged "slow-downs."

At Cincinnati, Federal Conciliator George H. Bell began negotiations for settlement of a dispute at the Chevrolet division of General Motors Corp. as 700 CIO-United Auto Workers continued their six-day walkout.

Another General Motors plant, The Packard Electric Division at Warren, was affected by the 23-day stoppage of 52 CIO-United Electrical Workers as the National WLB ordered the company to reinstate 29 of the employees suspended July 5 for violating plant lunchtime regulations.

At Toledo, the stoppage of 230 employees of the Lakeside Biscuit Co. entered its second day after the Regional WLB at Cleveland issued a back-to-work order yesterday to workers who walked out in protest of a tapering wage scale previously ordered established by the board.

No change was reported in the strike of some 680 employees of the Dayton Malleable Iron Co. at Iron. (Please Turn to Page Six)

Surrender Demand Has Japs Worried

Radio Gives Conflicting Reports About Fighting to Death and Destruction Threatened in Allied Ultimatum

By JAMES D. WHITE
SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(P)—Japan's semi-official Domei Agency said Premier Suzuki would broadcast to the nation today "his determination for the decisive battle in the streets," but a series of Tokyo broadcasts failed to report an official rejection of the Allied ultimatum to surrender.

Japanese propaganda agencies went through successive stages of professed fury, vague double-talk, and ridicule of the Potsdam declaration in which America, China and Britain bluntly told Japan to quit now or be destroyed.

Domei started with an angry statement the ultimatum would be ignored and Japan would "fight to the bitter end."

The Tokyo radio soon toned this down by saying that Nippon would "adopt a policy to strive toward completion of the greater East Asia war in conformity to the hitherto established basic principles."

Domei then returned to the air, and while omitting any further reference about fighting to the bitter end, it announced Premier Suzuki would broadcast to the nation today, and would express "his determination for sure victory and firm and unshakable measures to cope with the final decisive battle between Japan and America."

The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast heard by American Broadcasting Company monitors, then stated the ultimatum was being "dismissed as quite a farce" by the Japanese press. It quoted the newspaper Mainichi as calling it "a preposterous nonsense and bluff."

But at the same time it said (Please Turn to Page Eight)

GOERING'S ATTACK CAUSED BY THUNDER

His Ability to Stand Strain Of Trial Questioned

MONDORF, Luxembourg, July 28.—(P)—A U. S. army medical officer, disclosing that Reichsmarschal Herman Goering suffered a heart attack during an electrical storm Thursday night, has raised the question whether the captive Nazi leader could stand the strain of a war crimes trial.

"Goering is so emotionally unstable you never can tell about his type," said Capt. Clint L. Miller, Summit, Mo.

The officer attributed the attack to Goering's fear of thunder and lightning.

"Complete Success in Every Department," Secretary Frank E. Ellis Says as End Approaches—Crowds All That Had Been Hoped For and Exhibits and Race Program Were Up to Expectations

Although rain started falling early Saturday morning and the outlook for the closing day of the Fair was not bright, the secretary said at 10:30 A. M. that the full program of the Fair would be carried out if possible, and if rain ceased falling by the noon hour, there was every indication the track could be conditioned for the afternoon races.

Generally the rain was very beneficial to lay the dust on the grounds, and as much of the Fair program, afternoon and night, will be carried out as the weather permits.

ATTLEE CABINET GOES IN OFFICE

Six Labor Party Stalwarts Sworn in By King

By W. W. HERCHER
LONDON, July 28.—(P)—Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee and the six senior members of his new Labor cabinet took the oath of office today from King George VI at Buckingham Palace and then hurried across London to Bever Hall, where members of the new Labor majority in the House of Commons held their first organization meeting.

Attlee and his new and forthright foreign secretary, Ernest Bevin, were scheduled to leave shortly for Potsdam along with Sir Edward Bridges, secretary to the cabinet, and Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, chief of staff to the Ministry of Defense.

The new government leaders were sworn in after several members of Winston Churchill's government saw the king and relinquished their seals of office.

British "New Deal"

Attlee's selection of the six Labor party stalwarts as the nucleus of his cabinet was hailed by the British Labor press as constituting a "New Deal" in British government.

The rest of the cabinet will be named later.

Attlee himself took the posts of Minister of Defense and First Lord of the Treasury, which were also held by Churchill.

Other cabinet selections were: Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council and leader in the House of Commons; Arthur Greenwood, Lord Privy Seal; Sir Stafford Cripps, President of the Board of Trade; Sir William Allen Jowitt, Lord Chancellor.

"These able men and those who will be chosen," said the Daily Herald, Labor party organ, "will give Britain the new deal which her people are entitled to expect."

Sources close to the Labor party expressed belief Attlee and Bevin were returning to the Big Three conference ready to assure President Truman and Premier Stalin that Britain would continue to give first priority to the defeat of Japan.

Other assurances, these sources said, were that Britain would back up fully the growth of the newly-created world security league, pledge support of pressure.

The Washington C. H. High School Band, which played in the grandstand during the afternoons, was praised generally.

The grounds were well policed and the good natured crowd, bent on thoroughly enjoying the event, made the task of the police an easy one. Sheriff Orland Hays had charge of the policing.

The fine co-operation of many organizations, individuals and the public in helping make the Fair a success, was praised by Secretary Ellis on behalf of the Fair Board.

BIG BATTLESHIP SUNK IN ATTACK ON NAVAL BASE

Enemy Being Pushed Back In China, Borneo and Philippines

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
By The Associated Press

In coordinated air strikes at Japan today carrier planes blasted crippled remnants of the almost annihilated Imperial navy, fighters from Iwo Jima raked Tokyo airdromes, and Superforts warned civilians to flee from 11 cities which have been marked as their next targets.

The 29,990-ton battleship Hyuga, listed among 26 warships damaged in earlier carrier raids this week, was reported sunk. Carrier airmen said she lay in the mud off the Kure naval base, now transformed into a fleet graveyard, her decks awash and her superstructure burned away.

Previously Damaged

The Hyuga had been reported damaged in the raid on the naval base Tuesday.

It is one of two Ise class battleships whose foredeck had been cleared for launching planes by catapult.

Navy men said that if the sinking were confirmed, it would be the first time in history carrier planes had sent a battleship to the bottom.

The Japanese offered air opposition on this third attack by Vice Admiral John S. McCain's Task Force 38 on the coveted naval base.

Their planes rose over southern Honshu trying to ward off swarms of planes which struck not only at the naval base but at shipping and air fields. Flyers reported the weather was excellent with anti-aircraft fire moderate to heavy.

The fleet of Japan, once the third most powerful in all the world, became a fugitive naval force of small warships, cargo ships, luggers and sampans.

Every one of the 10 battleships which Japan had at the time she launched the war in the Pacific at Pearl Harbor either had been sent to the bottom or was laid up for repairs after the navod wrought by Admiral Halsey's U. S. Third Fleet.

On distant land fronts, Chinese columns drove into Kweilin last night and Japanese in the Philippines and Borneo were driven to the point where food for survival became their major worry. Capture of Kweilin in southeast China would make nine former U. S. air bases retaken from the Nipponese.

COMMUNIST PARTY IS RESURRECTED

More Aggressive Role Is Planned on Fascism

NEW YORK, July 28.—(P)—The Communist party of the United States, resurrected after a 14-month hiatus, emerged again in national politics today, ready to "play a more aggressive role in combating Fascism and reaction."

In re-establishing the party, delegates to a special national convention voted to disband the Communist Political Association, which was established in May, 1944, under the leadership of Earl Browder, who became its president.

An official press release said Browder's policy of collaboration with capitalism was "unanimously rejected by the convention."

Decision to reconstitute the party was unanimous, the release declared. Browder, however, "was not a delegate and did not vote," the statement said.

Miracles Written into War Record

Incredible Events Include Cloud over Dunkerque and Calm Sea for Africa Invasion

By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
(Central Press Association)
WASHINGTON, July 27.—Some of the incredible events of World War II have been officially written into the records of the War and Navy departments in Washington as miracles.

Each of these amazing events were officially checked, but the investigators, unable to find any reasonable explanation, eventually filed their reports with the statement they seemed to carry a touch of the supernatural.

There is at least one such report in the files of the British Admiralty in London. It tells of the strange fog which settled over Dunkirk when the English army was being hurriedly evacuated.

Meteorologists have no satisfactory explanation of this phenomenon. It simply does not fit in with the known laws of nature.

The fog appeared over this area just as the evacuation started and disappeared with the same suddenness when it was completed.

Fog a True Blessing

However, the fortunate timing of this fog was not its only strange feature. For 50 feet above the land and water the air was clear, enabling the hundreds of boats with their amateur pilots to load their boats with human cargo (Please Turn to Page Three)

CATTLE FEEDING PAYMENTS BEING MADE HERE NOW

MAY 19-JUNE 30
APPLICATION TO BE MADE NOW

Drafts Issued to Farmers
By AAA When All Requirements Met

Cattle feeders in Fayette County are now receiving payments at the county AAA office under the government's new beef production payment program designed to increase the production of meat. The method of payment is similar to the dairy payment program, also handled through the county AAA office, according to the county chairman, Harry Silcott. The payments are made by drafts issued by the county AAA committee.

The beef payment amounts to 50 cents per hundredweight on cattle weighing 800 pounds or more and selling for at least $14.55 anywhere in Ohio. Cattle sold outside the state must bring the zone rate where sold.

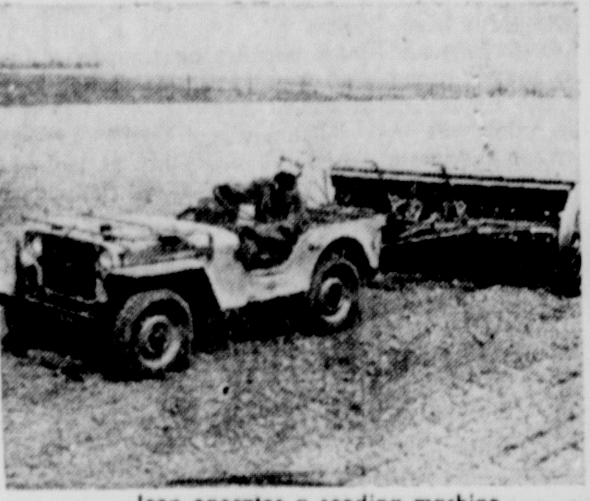

This is the first meat production payment made directly to the livestock feeder. The program is designed to help hold the line against inflation by preventing sharp increases in retail prices which might lead to uncontrolled increases in wages and other economic factors.

The beef cattle production payment is available to all feeders, including slaughterers who also are feeders, provided their cattle meet the program requirements.

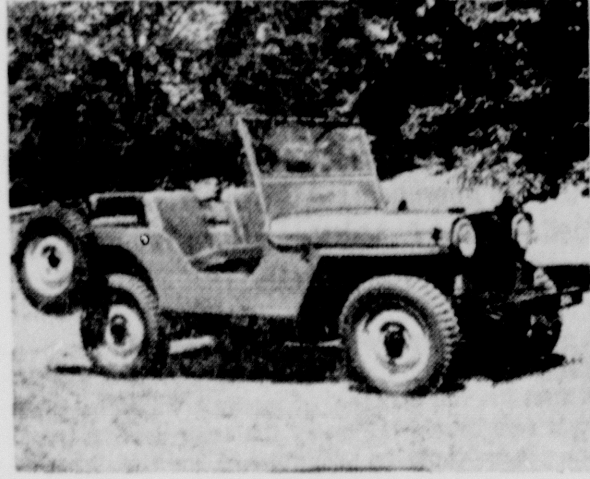

To be eligible, a feeder must certify on his application that he owned the cattle at least 30 days before their sale; that the cattle weighed at least 800 pounds when sold; that the cattle brought not less than the minimum price and that the cattle were sold for slaughter to an authorized slaughterer or to another person who has delivered them to an authorized slaughterer within 29 days after the sale. An authorized slaughterer is any slaughterer who operates under an OPA permit at the time he slaughters the feeder cattle on which the payments have been made.

A feeder-slaughterer is eligible to receive payment provided payment has not previously been made on his cattle. He also may receive payment on cattle he raised provided they are eligible under the program. To collect the payment he must substantiate the date of purchase, the prices he paid, and the weight at the time of purchase. He also must certify the grade and weight of the carcass after slaughter to further determine the eligibility of the (Please Turn to Page Three)

DOWN ON THE FARM

By THOMAS E. BERRY

CLIP THE WHEAT STUBBLE

That's the advice of our best informed farmers and crop specialists. Clip it right away too — just as soon as you can, and clip it low. This kills or weakens most of the weeds, and gives the new clover and timothy seedlings a chance to make a good growth before freezing weather comes.

I know there are many corn belt farmers who think that leaving the straw from the combine on the field and not clipping it, protects the grass; but the experience of the best farmers and experimentation workers do not show this; but it does prove conclusively, that the stands of new grass and legume seedlings in wheat, rye, and other winter annuals, is very much better the next year in the clipped, than in the unclipped fields.

PICK UP BAILERS

They are in the corn belt in a big way this year. The big thing that can be said for them is that they put the hay in a convenient package for handling, and that hay stored in the bale takes up less mow room than hay just put into the mow loose.

They do not reduce the labor required in making hay, unless some mechanical device is arranged on the wagon for loading the bales, and for getting them into the mow. I know of no machine for loading the bales from the field to the wagon, but there are several for getting the bales from the wagon to the hay mow. The information that I have is that most of these machines are "home made."

The endless belt conveyor type of machine run by a tractor, gives good results. Then some men load the bales on a platform, suspended from the carriage of the hay fork, and pull them up into the mow very much like hay is taken up.

We will be glad to learn how you do this job, for the information of our readers in a chain of corn belt papers using this column. Thanks in advance for this help.

HOW DO YOU DO? HOW DO YOU DO

That's what I recently said to a little two-year old farm boy, who was helping his mother grind feed, while his dad did the evening chores.

"Fine," he replied, in a timid voice. Then he stepped a few paces forward (little paces, too—very little paces) and put out his little chubby hand, all covered with feed from the ground grain he was sacking for mother. Then he gave me a radiant smile that made me feel good all evening. "What a happy little farm boy," I thought as I hurried on to make my next evening call. "His education is beginning and it is a liberal education, that you can get at no place but a farm."

FLY SPRAY

I mentioned that in my column last week, and I have been demonstrating it this week, in the barn, where I kill every fly before I begin milking, and those on the pure bred Angus bull in the next box stall. The cattle don't even switch their tails, after I get through spraying.

There are many good sprays on the market, but the one I am using, on the recommendation of a friend, is exceptionally good. I just demonstrated it to Mrs. Berry on the front porch. I killed every fly, and we had a lot of them this rainy morning. One was especially annoying, as it insisted on sitting on my hand, and riding back and forth across the page, as I was writing this col-

PRODUCERS BUY LAMBS AND PIGS AT FORTY CENTS

Annual Sale of 4-H Club Is Held at Fair Friday Forenoon

The annual sale of 4-H Club fat lambs and hogs took place at the Fairgrounds late Friday forenoon, and only the lambs and hogs were offered, as the 4-H Club steers will be sold in October.

The Producers Cooperative Livestock Association were high bidders on both lambs and hogs, and the lamb shown by Rosalee Cockerill was purchased at 40 cents per pound.

The Producers paid 40 cents per pound for the first prize hogs, three in number, shown by Robert Kibler.

Willard Perrill purchased the reserve champion lamb at 25 1-2 cents per pound. The lamb belonged to Rodman Scott.

Swift and Company, through the Fayette County Stock Yards, bought the second high pen of pigs at 22 cents per pound.

The lambs were graded by Forest Anders in pool grades and were all purchased by the Producers Cooperative Livestock Association at the following prices:

Bleu grades, $16.66 per 100; red grades, $16 per 100 and yellow grades at $15.50 per 100.

Prices paid for the 4-H Club lambs and pigs were considered good, and the youthful owners were highly pleased with the sale.

The 4-H lambs and pigs have no ceiling price, but must be resold for market purposes.

W. E. (Bill) Weaver was the auctioneer, and did a good job of selling.

Fayette County Shepherd's Club

The 1945 Fayette County sheep show is now history. The entries in the livestock division were very light due to an eleventh hour ruling by the O.D.T.

The sheep barn was by no means empty, however. With forty-nine boys and girls showing sheep in the 4-H Club most of the pens were occupied. The 4-H Club not only presented stiff competition in the market classes but also had entries in the purebred division, Hampshires, Cheviots, Shropshires, Dorsets and Corriedales. Some of these 4-H members showed also in the open classes and you will note by the awards carried yesterday that they walked off with many of the prizes.

There was much dissatisfaction with the placings in the market classes in 4-H judging in as much as the champion lamb and her mate, winners of the heavy pair classes, neither one were able to make the blue pen. While nine lambs that placed behind them did make the blue pen. In strict violation of the Shepherds' Club rules this pair were blocked which gave them a definite advantage in appearance over the other contestants. The blocking did not fool the skilled hand of the grader, however.

The Suffolk breeders put on one of the nicest shows in the barn. There were four full flocks including the Staunton, Virginia, champion ram that sold for $250. The one flock belonged to Don C. Ross, Greathopes Farm of Hillsdale, Michigan and were held over here on their way home from Staunton. Mr. G. B. Vance showed them for Mr. and Mrs. Ross.

The Shropshire breeders also had several entries with good specimens of their breeds. There were Dorsets, Shropshires, Suffolks and Corriedales. The boys who usually show Southdowns are now away in various branches of the armed services and their classification is being held open for them on their return.

Let's hope that next year sees a wide open show with no transportation troubles.

FARM SECURITY PROGRESSES IN THREE YEARS

Processing Loans to Veterans Returning from World War II Is Important

Farm Security Administration borrowers and employees in Ohio have chalked up an unopposed list of achievements during the three and a half years since Pearl Harbor, A. L. Sorensen, state director said today.

Among those achievements were: Rehabilitated 9,538 farm families from borrowers into paid-up class.

Collected repayments on operating loans totalling $8,270,231.

Made new operating loans during the same period of $5,339,305 to increase war food production.

Made special flood restoration loans to farmers in five different counties where major losses were incurred.

Made 288 farm-purchase loans to tenant farmers and sharecroppers so that they could be graduated into the farm-ownership group. Further graduated 51 tenant-purchase families to holders of clear-title deeds by collecting in full the farm purchase price. This last achievement is considered especially noteworthy because these loans were set up on a forty-year repayment schedule at the time they were made, and none of the 51 who have paid in full made their original contract prior to the 1938 crop year.

Made farm operating loans to 59 returned veterans of World War II, and farm ownership loans to 2 others, in order that these servicemen could return to farming after their discharge.

Sold 107 farm units from government property once a part of various projects operated in the state.

Followed rigid hold-the-line policies against land price inflation by refusing to make loans for the purchase of farms at prices greater than their long-time agricultural values.

Trained and maintained county committees for certifying agricultural loans under the GI Bill of Rights.

FSA borrowers throughout the state have materially increased their food production despite war-time conditions such as fewer and older pieces of equipment and frequently without limestown and fertilizers they needed for peak production. Many FSA borrowers throughout the state have won awards offered for production increases.

All FSA activities in the state are being administered from the "grass roots" level by delegation of responsibility to area FSA supervisors (C. E. Copeland here) and by use of FSA committees composed of prominent farmers in each county.

Of even greater satisfaction than any other one thing is that FSA borrowers, on the average, have greatly increased their security on the land, their incomes and their net work. They have improved their living standards, assumed greater responsibility toward the community and are participating more actively in community activities, Sorensen said.

Honey should be stored in a dry place at room temperature.

THE WAR TODAY

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

There's an old Oriental proverb, much quoted in Japan that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount.

That sums up the precarious position of the Mikado's wretched government. It is striving frantically to find a way—short of unconditional surrender—to disengage itself from the war which it precipitated, and there are many signs that nerves are badly frayed.

We can say without fear of exaggeration that Japan already is suffering from shell-shock. Taking advantage of this, the Allies are pouring both material and psychological warfare into the enemy.

The Potsdam ultimatum, demanding unconditional surrender with the alternative of "prompt and utter destruction," has been followed by an unprecedented warning that certain specified cities are to be destroyed by incendiary bombs. In short, we are calling our shots. We learn, too, that the Allies have stepped up their "military time table for the defeat of Japan," and are shifting soldiers directly from Europe to the Pacific than originally planned.

Now the strength of this psychological warfare lies in the fact that we can and will implement it. The psychological will be transmitted into the material in short order—and the Japs know it. They know there's exact truth in Lt. Gen. James Doolittle's forecast that American bombers will level Japanese cities and transform the country into a nation of nomads.

To be sure, the Japanese news agency, Domei, says Nippon will choose "utter destruction" to unconditional surrender. But that lacks the seal of supreme authority and is surrounded by tacit admissions that Japan is beset by superior forces. The Tokyo government still pursues its treasure hunt, looking for some opening that will soften that "unconditional surrender."

Japan's main effort is centered in an attempt to cause dissension among the Allies, or create situations calculated to discourage prosecution of the war to the point of unconditional surrender. With this in view Tokyo has been working overtime to cause trouble between China and her allies. The Jap scheme is two-pronged. It aims (1) at creating distrust in the mind of the Chinese government, and (2) at widening the rift between Chungking and the Yenan Communists in northern China.

Japanese propagandists are representing Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government as a puppet that is being forced to sell China to American big business and open the gates to a large American army. They declare that the destruction of Yenan is a matter that has to be speedily carried out by the Chungking government in order to prevent interference in China's internal affairs not only by the United States but by the Soviet Union. And to cap all this we get the following hypocritical statement from General Okamura, supreme commander of the Japanese army in China:

"We, as China's neighbor and friend, feel profoundly sorry for the Chinese people. . . . I cannot approve of Chungking's policy of depending on foreign powers for the solution of China's domestic issues."

The antidote to this poison is exactly what Jimmy Doolittle has prescribed—leveling of Japan's cities. The Allied authorities have made it clear that they intend to go all out in their attack from now on.

So we needn't take Tokyo's present mild defiance of the Potsdam ultimatum as final. There certainly is a possibility that we shall hear far more conciliatory words before many more of Nippon's cities have been blown into dust.

BRAZIL ADDS 4 SHIPS TO ITS GROWING FLEET

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil's navy has added four units to a fleet which Naval Minister Adm. Aristides Guilhem says has increased by at least 60 vessels since Brazil went to war in 1942.

The new ships, constructed in the shipyards of Rio's Guanabara Bay, were the destroyers Acre and Apa, and the submarine chasers Rio Pardo and Rio Negro. They will join a fleet which, according to Guilhem, has already conveyed more than 2,901 ships of all nationalities in operations reaching into the Caribbean and Mediterranean as well as along Brazil's coast.

TENNESSEANS BOAST A CENTURY OF SAFETY CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Two Somerville Iron Works employees have a combined total of 102 years in foundry jobs, with no serious accidents.

D. W. Dwyer, 74, started in the business with the Southern Stove Works of Evansville, Ind., in 1887.

E. L. Lasater, 61, started with the Shuster Foundry Co. of South Pittsburgh, in 1900.

Both went to work for Somerville in 1921 and still handle the most difficult jobs in the plant, their employers say.

VETERANS HERE CAN GET HELP AT DRAFT BOARD

Everybody Ready To Help Discharged Men Get Employment

Fayette County's Selective Service Board is doing its best to help returning veterans get jobs, Howard Fogle, the chairman, said as he expressed the hope that men discharged from the service would consult with the Draft Board and lay their employment problems before its officials.

He said the board and its re-employment officer, Charles V. Sexton, are carrying out all the provisions of the Selective Training and Service Act which places much of the responsibility of assisting veterans into civilian employment on the shoulders of the system through which they went into the country's armed forces.

In explaining the board's re-employment service and its broad objectives, Fogle referred to an explanatory statement by Col. C. W. Goble, the state's Selective Service director. He quoted Col. Goble:

"Our first big job was to select men for the armed forces. That job isn't completed yet, but that doesn't mean that we aren't working hard on the other big job cut out for us by Congress . . . the job of aiding veterans in finding the kind of employment they want and making certain that those who desire to return to their former positions will be reinstated in them."

Col. Goble, he said, emphasized that inductions are continuing and are necessary because of the constant need by the armed forces for replacements, but he added that the local boards also are keenly interested in seeing that the men they selected for service are firmly re-entrained in civilian life.

"It is an understatement to say that the plans for reemployment of veterans have been made for the plans are already functioning. In the country at large there are 644 local boards; each of these local boards has one or more re-employment committees attached and delegated with the responsibility to assist the veterans in obtaining reinstatement in their former position or to extend practical assistance if he wants new employment. Attached to Ohio's 330 local boards there are about 875 reemployment committees."

"Whatever his problem or plans for the future may be, the discharged veteran should have an interview with the clerk of his local board as soon as possible after he reports his new status to his local board."

"Even though he may believe he is thoroughly informed as to the rights and benefits to which he is entitled, it is entirely possible that there may be some aspects fitting his particular case that he has overlooked."

Fogle declared Col. Goble remarked on the keen interest evidenced by individual local board members in the welfare of the discharged veteran. With only a slight variation in language, he said that he had heard board members speak many times substantially as follows:

"These young men were taken away from their families and their jobs because it was necessary to win the war. And when they return it is just as necessary for us to exert every human effort toward seeing that those same young men are given all the breaks to which they are legally and morally entitled."

For the benefit of recently discharged servicemen and those still in the service who may not be entirely familiar with the provisions of the Selective Training and Service Act relating to the re-employment rights of discharged veterans, he reviewed these provisions as follows:

Conditions for reinstatement in former position: (a) A veteran is entitled by law to reinstatement in his former position or to a position of like seniority, status and pay;

(1) If such position was in the employ of a private employer, the United States government, its territorial possessions, or the District of Columbia;

(2) If such position was not a temporary one;

(3) If he entered the Armed Forces subsequent to May 1, 1940;

(4) If he satisfactorily completed his period of training and service and received a certificate to that effect;

(5) If he is still qualified to perform the duties of such position;

(6) If he makes application for reemployment within 90 days after he is relieved from service, or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year;

(7) If such position is in the employ of a private employer, the employer's circumstances have not so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to reinstate the veteran to such position or to a position of like seniority, status and pay.

Rights after reemployment. . . . A veteran who is restored to a position in the employ of the Federal Government or a private employer, as provided in Paragraph 1 above, is entitled by law to the following additional benefits:

(a) He shall be considered as having been on furlough or leave of absence during his period of service;

(b) He shall be restored without loss of seniority;

(c) He shall be entitled to participate in insurance or other benefits offered by the employer pursuant to establish rules and practices relating to employees on furlough or leave of absence in effect with the employer at the same time such person entered military or naval service;

(d) He shall not be discharged from such position without cause within one year after such restoration.

um. It has gone now, and I thought gone for good. I thought "No it is back. I'll fix that little fly," but I don't need to do it, for it fell over dead.

I am not selling fly spray, but I am well sold on this one. If you will send me a self addressed post card, I'll have my secretary send you the name of the spray; you'll like it, and it doesn't cost very much.

DOGS IN THE SHEEP

I was on a farm yesterday where dogs had been in the sheep. While they didn't kill any of them they injured several, and they frightened the ewes so much that they will never get over it. The owner of the flock would be wise to sell them.

JUNE PEACHES

I was on a farm on a high point in Adams County, Ohio, this week, where June peaches were ripening in the sun. They were delicious and low in acid too, and they had a delightful flavor. This was a bud freestone peach. "That's a bud peach," the owner of the orchard said, "but I have forgotten the name of it." We'd like to know its name. We are wondering if any of our readers know what it is. Thanks for this help to us, and our readers.

BEEES

"Don't try to get started with bees by catching swarms, and buying a few hives, but buy packages bees (at least three pounds and a strong young queen) from some of the many reliable firms producing them." That's the advice of my bee instructor — a man who produced a ton of honey last year, and who has sold honey all over the world.

"Oh, you might buy a few strong swarms, if they are in a modern hive and healthy," he added, "but I wouldn't fool with very many of them."

This man knows, for he has been in the bee business 40 years.

FALL GARDENS

Now is the time to put them out. Ours is ready to plant. We have plenty of time yet for most garden vegetables, and even for an early variety of sweet corn.

Why don't you put out another garden now? Food is greatly needed.

You South Pacific soldiers and sailors might try it too, you are doing some good gardening, I am informed.

Thanks for your interesting letters. I'll get them answered just as soon as I can. I am not exactly busy, but most of my time is taken. I might add that it is the busy people who are the happiest. The explanation is simple. They don't have time to worry. Then we know that we are meant for action, and that we are the happiest, when we are using our talents. "Use or lose seems to be the law of life," is a medical proverb. I recall, that is "in point," as a lawyer would express it.

A feeder other than a slaughterer must present sales receipts, invoices, scale tickets, or other written evidence from the buyer to verify date of sale; the name of the buyer; the point of sale; the number of head; the total liveweight; the price received and the name of the legally authorized slaughterer to whom sold.

In addition, the feeder, if he did not raise the cattle, must show the status of the cattle at the time he purchased them by furnishing the name of the person from whom purchased and the date of purchase. The feeder may also be required to furnish evidence that the payment had not been made previously on these cattle.

Application for payment based on cattle sold May 19 through June 30 may be made at the county AAA office at any time on or before August 31. Application for payment based on cattle sold after June 30 must be filed at the county AAA office within 60 days after the date of the sale. In other words, there will be no payment periods as there have been in connection with the dairy production payment program. The application may be filed at any time within 60 days after the cattle are sold.

MIRACLES OF WAR WRITTEN INTO RECORD DEFY EXPLANATIONS

without confusion.

From this level up to thousands of feet in the air, the fog was so thick that it was impossible for an airplane to fly and the pilot to observe the movements below. Without this fog it is agreed that England would have suffered one of the greatest military disasters in her long history.

There is one report in the files of our war department which tells of how the engine of a plane went dead in a fog while flying over the jungle on an island in the South Pacific.

Without the slightest knowledge of what was below him the pilot was preparing to bail out when the plane made a perfectly three-point landing with hardly a jar.

When rescuers found the pilot they were speechless. The plane had landed in the dense fog in the only open space for miles around,

NOW IS TIME TO PUT IN FUEL OIL, OPA SAYS

International Agreements for Cuban Sugar Back of Shortage in U. S.

Householders who heat their homes with fuel oil would do well to prepare for the coming winter now by having their storage tanks filled, it was said at the county Ration Board's office on West Court Street.

It was explained that because of diversion of tankers from civilian to military use and the tremendous needs of the Pacific war and the long distances involved would leave few ships to carry oil for civilian use.

"Well informed authorities" were quoted as saying that the "civilian fuel oil situation will be more critical next year than it was last year," and it was added that "every home storage tank should be filled this summer as a safeguard against suffering when it gets cold a few months from now."

It was said that a few orders for fuel oil are beginning to come in now, but it was added that "there are not enough to get as many filled as there should be" to relieve the pressure later on. A check of suppliers, it was said, showed orders up to the present time are 75 percent less than at the same time last year.

And About Sugar

Turning to the sugar situation, it was said that "during recent weeks more misconceptions and unfounded rumors are being circulated."

To the published suggestions that sugar shipments to liberated war areas in Europe be suspended to relieve the shortage in this country, especially for industrial users, a statement from OPA headquarters was referred to. It said in part:

"Their opinion seems to be based on the assumption that sugar sent through the U. S. to liberated countries belongs to our supply. They overlook the fact that part of the sugar from the Caribbean producing areas was allocated to these countries by tripartite agreement of the United States, Russia and England. There are no big refineries in this section. The raw sugar product goes through the United States for refining and re-shipment to a predestined port. The mere shipment via U. S. does not mean we are sending sugar out of this country which belongs to us. The allocation of 60,000 tons of sugar to Spain follows an agreement that Spain would not furnish certain strategic materials to Germany. A similar agreement was made with Switzerland but for a smaller amount of sugar."

A space so small and surrounded with such obstacles that the most skilled and reckless pilot would not have attempted to land there in broad daylight.

The official report in the war department files reads, "No injury to personnel, no damage to aircraft, no property damage." The only explanation of the amazing incident the investigators were able to make was to quote the statement of the pilot, "There is only one answer. The Lord did it for me."

General of the Army George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff, has told of what happened in connection with the landing of our huge expeditionary force in North Africa. General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower says this was the tensest day during the war with Germany.

The transports were nearing Africa when two storms were seen approaching, either one of which could have raised mountainous seas and wrecked the heavily-loaded ships. The commanding officers frankly and openly prayed and their prayers were followed by an astonishing event.

The two storms appeared to neutralize each other and the ships continued safely on their journey, landing at Casablanca in a sea described as "calmer on that particular coast than it had been for 68 years!"

Gen. George S. Patton, after the troops were landed, called for divine services, saying that "the great success attending the hazardous operations carried out on sea and land could only have been possible through the intervention of Divine Providence manifested in many ways."

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker has told of the two "miracles" which saved his life and those of his companions. Aviators are perhaps even more interested in the report made by a Lieutenant Whittaker.

With two of his men the lieutenant was drifting in an open boat. All of them were dying of thirst when they saw a rain cloud forming in the distance. As they watched they saw the wind blowing the cloud away.

All three of the men began to fervently pray. Then, without any change in the wind, the cloud moved over them. The rain that followed, said Lieutenant Whittaker, without the slightest question, saved their lives.

SPECIAL SCHOOL SET UP IN ENGLAND TRAINS GIS FOR WORK AFTER WAR

Thompson, Alliance, Neb., chief of the army's education division.

To gain admission, students must have completed high school and convinced their command officers they are worthy of time off from army duty to continue their studies. Gen. Thompson said his office was flooded with many more applications than the schools could handle.

Each eight weeks course will be equivalent to a normal summer course in American colleges. Thompson said "graduates" would be given full credit for their work, if and when they resume or start work in regular colleges.

While they have a choice of some 300 courses, covering every category of education except medicine, dentistry and law, students will be restricted to three hours of academic work daily. This ruling was made to afford them plenty of time for organized sports and recreation.

Not Just 'Army School'

"This is not just another army school—that's the thing we want to get away from," said Brig. Gen. Claude M. Thiele of Washington, D. C., "president" of Shrivvenham. "It will be run just like any other college and GI's even will be given simulated ranks of officers while here so they can eat with the officers and be called 'mister.'"

"To get the faculty together we went to the states, canvassed the universities, and persuaded some of the country's most noted educators to come and take part in the program. As a result, no college in the United States can boast of as strong a faculty."

Among the 250 names on the faculty roster are such well known instructors as Prof. Elmer T. Peterson, dean of the College of Education at the University of Iowa; Prof. Kenneth E. Olson, dean of the School of Journalism at Northwestern; Capt. John R. Sala, formerly of Christian College, Columbia, Mo.; Prof. R. N. Blasingame, head of the Agricultural Engineering Department at Pennsylvania State College, and Robert S. Reich of Cornell.

The army furnished less than half the teacher personnel; the rest were "drafted" out of their old jobs and put into uniform. The War Department pays them the same scale they were getting at home.

Until the educators moved in, Shrivvenham was just another former army base where men were trained for the invasion. Today the grass has been mowed and the barracks buildings painted to make it look like a college campus.

Mexico's most important commercial and industrial laws are now available in English translations.

CHRISTMAS MAIL FOR OVERSEAS TO START SOON

Post Office Issues First Information Regarding Yule Packages

During this torrid weather and at fair time information about mailing Christmas packages to the service men overseas may seem a little out of place, but Postmaster W. E. Passmore calls attention to the fact that the mailing period to insure delivery on time starts September 1 and ends October 15, and says "the earlier the better."

Parcels destined for delivery in China, Burma, India, the Middle East and the islands in the Pacific should be mailed as early as possible during the period stated, preferably not later than October 1, in view of the distance involved.

During this period requests from the addressees are not required in connection with Christmas parcels mailed to Army personnel. Patrons should indorse each gift parcel "Christmas Parcel." Special effort will be made to effect delivery of all Christmas parcels mailed during the periods stated above in time for Christmas.

Christmas cards for Army personnel overseas may be mailed at any time but patrons must mail such cards prior to November 15, 1945, if they are to have a reasonable expectation of delivery prior to Christmas. Christmas greeting cards for soldiers overseas must be sent in sealed envelopes and prepaid at the first-class rate.

Since Navy, Coast Guard, and Marine Corps personnel may receive parcels without a request at any time of the year, it is not the policy of the Navy Department to encourage the mailing of parcels during any particular period of time each year. The Navy Department suggests, however, that parcels intended as Christmas gifts be mailed not later than October 15 to afford some degree of probability of delivery prior to Christmas day, depending upon the destination and tempo of the war effort, and that parcels for personnel known to be in an area which would permit mailing subsequent to October 15 may be deposited for mailing at a date selected by the sender.

SIZE AND WEIGHT Christmas parcels for Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps personnel shall not exceed 5 pounds in weight or 15 inches in length, or 36 inches in length and girth combined. The War and Navy Departments have pointed out that members of the armed forces are amply provided with food and clothing and the public is urged not to include such matter in gift parcels. The public can ascertain what articles their relatives and friends can secure locally by correspondence with such person and should limit their gifts to articles not readily obtainable by the recipient.

Christmas parcels for Army personnel en route overseas shortly before or subsequent to October 15, 1945, will be accepted after October 15, up to and including December 10, 1945, upon presentation by the sender of a change of address notification.

A Great Leader

The fall of Winston Churchill as premier of England was probably destined. He did his great work and led in saving his country in one of the darkest hours of her history. For that service he will long be remembered and appreciated even by his political enemies.

But other times—other ways. This modern world moves fast, organized labor grows stronger, and "labor governments" arise and take the reins. And though many ultra conservatives wring their hands and wonder what the world is coming to, and prophesy disaster, life on the whole will probably continue moving along its predestined way. As Lord Tennyson wrote long ago, putting the words in the mouth of his legendary King Arthur:

"The old order changes, yielding place to new;

And God fulfils himself in many ways,
Lest one good custom should corrupt the world."

Stability does not last. It is life and change that seem to count most in the eternal scheme. None of us really know where we are going to end. There probably is no definite set end, in life or government or politics, but we are on our way. All we can do is live decently and keep trying.

Forest Losses

There has been a great and continuous battle in Oregon lately. Thousands of men have fought fires to save forests of great value. Millions of trees have died, and countless animals, mostly valuable themselves, have perished. Buzzards are described as hanging over the bodies of burned deer and other wild life, awaiting their feast.

The worst thing about such fires is their tragic repetition. One of the greatest of human blessings is allowed to become a destructive peril. It may be conquered to a far greater extent than it has been, but victory is still far off.

It should be remembered that trees in the forests are almost as valuable as buildings in the cities, and man depends on them more than he usually realizes. The Age of Steel, with all its triumphs, is still far from replacing the Age of Wood and this great natural resource still demands more than it receives.

No Substitute for Freedom

Day by day our rationing and price control system grows more taut. This situation brings us face to face with an issue which involves liberty itself. Will we turn back to the American system of a free economy at the earliest possible moment, or will we go further with controls that decide for every individual what he may produce, buy or sell? If we accept the latter doctrine, we should not kick at restrictions and shortages. If we accept the former doctrine, we should not kick at higher or lower prices based on true costs and a competitive market. We can't expect a free and easy American life with the risks it involves and the opportunities it offers, under a controlled economy.

A growing number of economists favor an early release of price controls. If some industries charge excessive prices, many new competitors will be attracted into those fields and a torrent of production will eventually cure high prices. Breakdown in price controls on reconversion products is feared by some who have studied the staggering task, as special postwar industrial situations that must await investigation may run into hundreds of thousands and small companies cannot survive long waiting periods.

The greatest safeguards the United States has against inflation are its manufacturers who produce on a low-cost basis, and its system of mass retail selling which distributes at a low unit-profit. That system, which before the war gave our nation the greatest customer service in the world, cannot exist by raising prices arbitrarily. Its salvation depends on low prices. It cannot operate on a basis of scarcity and restricted distribution. It operates on the philosophy of plenty. Such a system is a check on price gougers.

Dangers of Delay

A plane with propellers in the nose and tail, capable of running away from the fastest American fighters, was one Nazi invention which our soldiers nearly had to face. It was almost ready for action when the surrender came. About 40 machines, some in flying condition, were seized by our army at one airfield.

This is only one of many inventions which were headed off in the nick of time by the ending of the European war. The Japanese are inventive, too, and may have received some tips from the Nazis.

This is all the more reason why the United States should turn on the power and defeat Japan as soon as possible. Every extra day of war is another day of danger for our men. War workers and bond buyers, take notice.

Neighbors likely will be glad to hear that the ban on lawn mower production has been lifted.

Shock Chief Accident Danger

By HERMAN N. RUNDEN, M. D.

FIRST aid means the giving of immediate treatment to someone who has suffered an accident, or is suddenly ill. It is emergency treatment, and is usually carried out by someone other than a doctor.

It is important that first aid be properly given so that it may be as beneficial as possible without further aggravating the disorder that is present.

Chief Dangers

One of the chief dangers in accidents is the development of shock or collapse. In treating shock, it is important to keep the patient warm, with sufficient covering, the use of hot water bottles if they are available, and a warm drink. The next thing to think about is getting the patient to a hospital as quickly as possible.

Hence, a well-instructed "first-aid" will have someone send for an ambulance immediately, so that he will not be placed in the embarrassing position of waiting around with the patient, after all first-aid treatment is given, until an ambulance can arrive to take the patient to a hospital.

Broken Bones

In the case of broken bones, the outstanding necessity is that the patient must not be moved until the affected part of the body has been firmly fixed, so that movement will not cause the ends of the bone to protrude through the skin or be further injured. The presence of a broken bone can usually be determined by the presence of pain, loss of muscle power, swelling, and tenderness. The method used to fix the bones to prevent movement will depend on where the broken bones are located. However, splints can be made of rolled newspapers or some piece of wood that may be handy.

In first-aid treatment of severe burns, little need be done except to make the patient as comfortable as possible and then to remove him speedily to a hospital. If there is to be any great delay in getting the patient to a hospital, some antiseptic, perhaps, may be applied without any attempt being made to clean the burned area first.

Stop Bleeding

In the case of wounds, of course, the first object is to stop the bleeding. This may be accomplished by direct pressure on the wound with a pad of gauze and bandage. If this does not suffice, a tourniquet may be applied. It is made up of a piece of rubber tubing or some other material which can be wrapped around an arm or leg above the wound and then twisted until it is tight enough to check the flow of blood. However, a tourniquet can be left in place only for a short period of time. Obviously, cutting off the flow of blood too long may serve to produce permanent damage to the tissues leading to the development of gangrene or death of the tissues.

OUT IN THE FIELDS OF GOD

Voices are calling from afar
Out in the fields of God;
Out in the quiet solitudes
To paths not often trod.

Out where the blue canopied sky
Hover like tender wings;
Out in the radiant fields of God
The soul with longing clings.

Treasures are there in spaces broad,
Healing for burdened mind;
The flowers and trees and rippling streams
Proclaim that nature's kind.

Far from the tumult and the noise
The soul rebuilds its life;
Deep harmonies and quiet rest
Submerge discord and strife.

Horizons broad and far advanced
Give vision to the soul;
And thus enlarge the mind and heart
And strengthen self-control.

Great thoughts and mighty deeds are born
Out in the fields of God;
At burning bush men hear the call
And venture paths untrod.

And voices from the vastly deep
Give bearing to the soul;
Eternity with God's own plans
Like shining scroll unfold.

'ONLY GOOD GERMAN'

IS NOW A DEAD ONE

LONDON — (AP) — Baron von Trott du Solz, former councillor at the German foreign office, was known to Canadian prisoners of war as "a good German."

"He was the only good one I ever heard about," said Lieut. A. M. Hueston, Sernia, Ont., taken prisoner in August, 1942, while at Dieppe with the Essex Scottish regiment.

The Baron, about whom Canadians heard from other prisoners, camp near Berlin where favored was in charge of a luxury prison or high ranking prisoners were Rhodes Scholar at Oxford in 1929 held. He told prisoners he was a and that he was a friend of the late Lord Tweedsmuir former governor-general of Canada. He said he liked the English.

Evidence that von Trott may have meant what he said came after the attempted assassination of Hitler last July. He was hanged and the explanation given by the German newspapers was that he had used official journeys to Sweden to discuss war secrets with the enemy.

Production of dairy farm machinery and equipment in 1944 had a value of $36,000,000 compared with $23,000,000 in 1943, and $22,000,000 in 1941.

SYNOPSIS

Eleonore Lawrence, Air Raid Defense worker in Sweetburg—a town humming with war industry and rumors of saboteurs—has a secret assignment from the Counter Intelligence Corps which entailed that one of its agents, planted in a group of aliens nearby, was having difficulty getting reports to C. I. C. headquarters. The coded messages were to be left in discarded cigarette packets at designated places near the Lawrence home. Eleonore agreed to retrieve and mail them to a certain address. The Lawrence household, located on the lonely outskirts of town, consists of "Grandma" Lawrence, Sucky, Eleonore's small sister, and Mamie, maid of all work. Eleonore's brothers, Arthur and Eben, are in the Navy and Coast Guard respectively. Eleonore was the recipient of several spy expose books, and secretly hoped the anonymous sender might be William Steuben, who had visited the Lawrence months ago, but from whom she had heard nothing since. The adjoining Wolfe estate, long vacant, has been leased by B. Stead Jones of New York, and Eleonore noticed an attractive blonde on the grounds as she and Roof, her police dog, returned from their daily search. At home she finds the distinguished looking Jones visiting Grandma. He explains that his wife is an invalid and that he is interested in "hunting Fifth Columnists". He makes an offering for the rental of their house which he desires for one of his friends—but Eleonore turns it down.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Then Roof looked around the house and began barking at the stranger. Jones turned at the steps. "Your grandmother says you're fond of walking. Let me caution about this road up the mountain. I hear there is a rough crowd at the rubber factory—I'd avoid it if I were you."

"I've roamed these hills for years. I'm not afraid. And I have Roof. Roof, the fur rising on his neck, his eyes gleaming, was growling menacingly. Eleonore ran down and caught his collar.

"That's a powerful dog."

"He's like this with strangers. . . . Stop it, Roof! This is a friend! . . . If you want to get a place nearby, you may be able to rent the Pettis' house further up the road. It's much nicer than ours."

He looked gratified. "Oh, thanks a lot."

Eleonore went slowly inside, dragging Roof with her. Four hundred dollars! What a lot of pleasant things that could add to their lean budget! Gallons of paint inside and out, clothes, a new rug and couch for the living room. . . .

She rummaged in her coat pocket and found the code message she had picked up an hour before. Well, that was the answer to the four hundred dollars.

Driving into town to mail the scrap of paper, she reviewed her meeting with B. Stead Jones. He had risen high in her estimation since she had learned that he was fighting Fifth Columnists. And he had been rather sweet about warning her of those toughs at Hickory. . . .

A week later Roof disappeared.

It was only the third week and the whole fantastic set-up was getting his nerves twitchy. Being a secret agent entailed vigilance and quick thinking, but William Steuben hadn't counted on such close confinement. It would be a relief to see even that snake, Baalah, who

"How could I? Cooped up with no exercise!"

"Doc" with his fine features and white hair, looked like an ascetic clergyman, but his hands were knotted and horny. He had been a New York State farmer, he had told the young man, whose farm had been taken away from him by a crooked politician and banker. He told Steuben, "We're getting a new man for exercise and some more pupils."

"Got lots of them?"

"Every room full." "Doc's" smile hadn't come near him since his arrival. And the famed Carlotta was still invisible.

His two windows faced a steeply rising ascent of birch and pine trees, a meager view; he knew every crooked branch and moss-covered stone. By peering to one side, Steuben had a narrow glimpse of the road, along which nothing ever seemed to pass. If he wanted to escape, it shouldn't be too hard to drop from the second story to the ground, and cut away.

"Think, act, and be an utterly different person even when you are alone." Osborne had advised. "Drill yourself so that your reactions will be that of a secondary personality. Put the old self to sleep, except when—understand?"

He had nodded. It hadn't seemed so difficult when planning it. But the secondary personality was beginning to wear dangerously thin, with this rigid confinement, and there were weeks to go. His scarcely-touched lunch lay on a tray near the door.

Languidly, Steuben put a record on the phonograph as a key turned in the lock. The fellow called "Doc" came in for the tray. "You didn't eat much, Number Seven," he said chidingly.

was seraphic. "Carlotta has a big job on her hands."

"Carlotta, h'mm, never seen her. How's she joined up with the rest of it?"

A bell buzzed in the hall and "Doc" hurriedly picked up the tray, scurrying out the door.

The legend of Carlotta whetted Steuben's curiosity. Baalah exhibited admiration for her too. The whole scheme of Steuben's being here—so near to Eleonore Lawrence, yet unknown to her—was one of the workings of fate, unplanned and unforeseen. Baalah had brought it about.

After Steuben's training in counter-espionage, G-2 had "planted" him at a party on 110th Street, New York, to hunt out draft evaders among suspicious elements of the Latin population. To further his work for the C.I.C., he had posed as a Falangist sympathizer.

Faquo, an organizer, said to him one evening, "Bill, you want to come with me tonight to see a smart fella? Nice place, pent house, East River."

"One of us?"

Faquo had shrugged, grinning. "What you think? Maybe! A rich fella could be. No?"

Japs Still Being Killed on Corregidor

By JAMES HUTCHESON

CORREGIDOR—(AP)—Now and then Japanese stragglers still appear to be killed on this famed fortress in Manila Bay but summer and spring have healed much of war's terrible devastation.

"Just two days ago they killed two or three Japs who came out of a cave," Pfc. Paul E. Hawk of Rockford, Ohio, jeep driver for many "tourists" to "The Rock," told me July 11.

The occasional stragglers are flushed in periodic patrols of the many caves by Company F of the 38th Division's 152nd Regiment. The company, with the support of some Filipino army trainees, now garrisons the island.

It was five months since I had watched a battalion of the 24th Division's 34th Regiment storm onto the rock. A few quonset huts have been erected on the beachhead. Some garrison troops are also quartered in the wrecked barracks on "Topside," where the 503rd Paratroopers made their historic jump.

But the change that impressed me most was the green growth over the ridges leading up to the "Topside."

The scene of devastation during that February fighting was the most complete I ever had seen. Hillsides were pitted and burned bare by demolition and fire bombs. Stubby, blasted tree stumps stuck up like twisted prongs on the bleak landscape. The rocky terrain around the beachhead looked as though no blade of grass ever could push through it.

But those once moribund stumps and seared bushes have sprouted fresh shoots, as from pruned shrubbery. Heavy grass has grown up over the ridges.

Sgt. Joseph H. Risner of Brooklyn, N. Y., who presides at the registration hut on the beach, said the average of visitors is about 125 a day. Sighters that interest them most are the Wainwright Tunnel under Malinta Hill and the wrecked 12-inch gun positions overlooking the north channel from "Topside." The latter were elaborate American installations which, fortunately, the Japanese never were able to use.

There still is a stench of death about the entrance to the main Wainwright Tunnel. A rockslide blocks half of the battered entrance. Inside it is cold, forbidding and dark. The only light

RECORD FOR SHOOTING

ALTON, Ill. — (AP) — Mrs. Nora Pryor has established a mark that others may shoot at, but probably won't hit. She's worked 30 years at the same drawpress at the Western Cartridge Co. During that time she's turned out 2,646,000,000 cartridge cases.

ahead is from the opposite tunnel entrance. It seems a fitting home for nothing but bats and enemy dead.

Near the base of Malinta, a wrecked American tank still stands where a terrific explosion in a Japanese-occupied tunnel threw it 30 feet and caused a dozen casualties.

Twice a battleground, Corregidor now seems a military ghost. It has no decent airfield sites to offer and a fortress against an enemy sea attack is an anachronism in this fast-moving air war.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

By JACKSON ELLIOTT

(Jack Stinnett Is On Vacation)
WASHINGTON — One reason government regulations are complicated is that the size of a barrel depends on what's in it. This should make matters hard enough for the federal statisticians and regulators, but matters do not stop there.

Consider the bushel. The size of a bushel depends not on what's in it but where it is located. There's a standard bushel — 2,150.4 cubic inches — but each state has its own ideas. For instance, in Georgia you can hide 148 per cent more light under a bushel than you can in Louisiana.

A barrel contains 31 gallons, or 155 fifths, in the more accepted measurement. But if it were petroleum there would be 42 gallons in the drum. The whopper is the whale oil barrel — 56 gallons.

When you get down to fruits, the standard barrel is of 7,056 cubic inches unless you're stocking cranberries, when it comes to 5,826 inches. The familiar flour barrel contains 196 pounds, but if lime is what you've got your barrel will hold 180 pounds. Or you can get a bigger lime barrel which holds 280. Opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, there seems to be no standard cracker barrel.

If you tire of barrels, try a tierce. A tierce is a barrel with a fancy name. On the west coast a tierce of salt herring contains either 200 or 300 pounds, but a tierce of salmon contains 825 pounds.

To get back to the bushel—this appears to be the special bane of the statisticians of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, whose duty it is to figure out how many oysters we produce and eat.

Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which don't produce many oysters anyway, are good enough to employ the U. S. standard bushel. So do Connecticut and New York. The father south one goes, however, the stronger the doctrine of states' rights appears to apply to the bushel basket.

New Jersey and Delaware are content with bushels only 106 cubic inches larger than standard. Maryland's is 651 cubic inches larger, and Virginia's 853.

North Carolina's is a mere 30 per cent greater than standard but South Carolina has an 89 per cent bigger basket and Georgia has the biggest bushel of all.

Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas all have more generous bushels than Uncle Sam. But not Louisiana. There the bushel is shy just two cubic inches

Two Combine To Make Party Gala Success on Friday at F. D. Woollard Home

With Miss Ann Patton as Honor Guest, Dessert-Bridge Is Entertained by Two Hostesses For Her Pleasure on Friday Evening

Mrs. Fred R. Woollard, this city, and Mrs. M. J. Williamson, of Cedarville, combined hospitalities at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Woollard on Rawlings Street, Friday evening, when they had as their honored guest at a dessert-bridge, Miss Ann Patton, whose coming marriage to Naval Air Cadet Harold L. Geiger, U. S. N. R., Corpus Christi, Texas, will be an event of Friday, August third.

The much feted honor guest received along with the two hostesses in the attractively appointed Woollard residence amid a bower of beautiful garden blossoms, which were placed at points of vantage throughout. The great number of guests assembled early in the evening for the serving of dessert, wearing smart and cool frocks, whose brilliant colors added a colorful note to the enjoyed affair.

Five tables of guests were assembled by the two capable young hostesses who perfectly performed the many and exacting duties of hostess during the course of the pleasant evening. Four small tables were used to seat some of the guests while the bride was surrounded by a number of friends at the dining table. Centering the bride's table was a crystal watergarden of pink roses and clematis, while the smaller tables were decorated with miniature crystal vases of garden flowers.

Congeniality reigned during the hour at the tables when a tempting and dainty dessert course was served by the two hostesses, who were assisted by Mrs. Fred R. Woollard. The handsome appointments of the table along with the artistic decorations which were carried out in a pastel theme combined to make the hour one of prolonged enjoyment and gaiety for the guests.

During the course of the evening, five tables of bridge were at play. At the conclusion of an especially keen competition, the two hostesses presented awards to Miss Ruth Jane Sexton and to Mrs. Robert Himmler.

Miss Patton, a favorite with both the younger and older social sets of the city, was then presented with a handsome gift by Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Woollard. Her appreciative response was expressed most charmingly.

An out-of-town guest with those from here was Mrs. Arnold Starbuck, of Port William, Mrs. Woollard's mother.

As the guests took their reluctant leave at a late hour, each expressed their appreciation and indebtedness to their hostesses who had combined hospitalities so capably to make the occasion a most pleasurable one for the non-oree and other guests.

Rev. and Mrs. E. R. Rector and daughter, LaVaun, of Milford, had as their guests a group of young people from Jeffersonville Methodist Church for a potluck luncheon and supper at their attractive home.

After church, which all attended in a body, and also the Youth Fellowship at the church where Rev. Rector is now pastor, a most enjoyable afternoon was spent with the Rectors.

Those present were Romona DeMent, Ann, Ruth Agie, Martha Straley, Erma Wilt, Fern Wilt, Elizabeth Sears, Grace Wade, Keith Zimmerman, Marvin DeMent and David Baughn.

UPSWING IN CRIME REPORTED BY FBI

WASHINGTON, July 28--(AP)--The FBI reported today an 8.4 percent upswing in crime from January to July over the same period last year.

An FBI survey based on statistics from 392 cities of more than 25,000 population showed:

A 4.3 percent increase in murder and non-negligent homicide; 9 percent in rape; 10 percent in robbery; 11.3 percent in aggravated assault; 12.1 percent in burglary; 7.9 percent in larceny; and 4.6 percent in automobile theft. Negligent manslaughter declined 1.6 percent.

There has been a marked lowering of the level of water in wells over large parts of the United States in recent years.

Look she's back again in her funniest picture, Judy Canova and Alan Mowbray in "Scatter Brain". See Judy become a star starting Sunday at the State Theatre. Also on same program, they made history and love in "The Fighting Guardsman", starring Willard Parker. Thrills and spills to last you a life time.

COMING FEATURES AT THE THEATERS

FAYETTE THEATER

Packed with action that's tough and love that's rough... thrilling with the exciting hurly-burly of one of America's most fabulous play spots... and starring George Raft, Joan Bennett, Vivian Blaine and Peggy Ann Garner, "Nob Hill," the dazzling new technicolor drama-with-music, will be shown at the Fayette Theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Frisco, where gals kicked highest, fists crashed hardest and blood ran hottest--where men fought at the snap of a garter, and women loved at the snap of a finger--is the rich and colorful setting for this latest extravaganza. The lush, plush atmosphere of San Francisco's Nob Hill versus the gaudy gaiety of its world famous Barbary Coast at the turn of the century, sets the stage for the thrilling love battle that made the Barbary Coast pause in its song, turn from its women and reach for its hips.

When identical-and-beautiful-twins change places in order to bring their parents together again, and neither the parents nor the girls' own boy friends realize what has happened, you have the outline for a hilarious comedy. And that's just what "Twice Blessing" is; this will be shown at the Fayette Theater on Wednesday and Thursday. Featured in the film are Preston Foster and Gail Patrick as the parents in the case, and those wonderful Wilde twins, Lee and Lynn along with their boy friends, Marshall Thompson and Jimmy Lydon.

No prize fighter in the long history of the ring has been the source of more legend than John L. Sullivan. This week the film story of his colorful life arrives at the Fayette Theater, and will be shown on Friday and Saturday.

"The Great John L." is the story of John L. Sullivan from his beginnings in Boston, on to his final tour of the Chautauqua circuit. It is the picturization of a life packed with all the warm humor, the gaiety and the glittering days which made the years at the turn of the century the "Gay Nineties." Starring is Linda Darnell, Barbara Britton and Greg McClure in the starring roles, while featured roles are played by Lee Sullivan, Wallace Ford, Joel Friedkin, Hope Landin, Otto Kruger, George Ma-

Robert McCoy, of the Leesburg road.

Miss Lois Cavinee left Saturday morning for Camp Cleghorn, near Waupaka, Wis., for a two weeks' stay. While there at this co-operative camp, Miss Cavinee will act as pianist.

thews, Jim Kerrigan and Harry Crocker.

PALACE THEATER

The marital adventures of a quiet, unassuming small-town history professor furnish the theme for Gary Cooper and Teresa Wright's new comedy, "Casanova Brown," which will be shown at the Palace Theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Frank Morgan heads the supporting cast, along with Anita Louise, Patricia Collins, Isobel Elsom, Edmund Breon and Mary Treen. Comedy and romance, combined with the colorful excitement of a mammoth shippard make "A Sporting Chance," which will be shown at the Palace Theater on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, a great film. A cast of top-notch performers bring this story to life with an impact of freshness. Starring Jane Randolph, featured roles are presented by John O'Malley, Stephen Barclay and Edward Gargan.

Wednesday and Thursday, the Palace Theater offers Alan Marshal and Laraine Day in "Bride By Mistake," with Marsha Hunt, Allyn Joslyn, and Edgar Buchanan. A gay romance between a very wealthy girl and an army flier, a slap-happy marital arrangement between her secretary and the secretary's husband, all nicely misguiding by a too cautious guardian, and completely mixed-up by the heroine's determination to test the sincerity of the man she loves adds up to this rollicking high life comedy. Also to be shown will be Fuzzy St. John and Buster Crabbe in "Valley of Vengeance."

Friday and Saturday Gene Autry and Smiley Burnett in "Man

STATE THEATER

Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the State Theater will offer "Imitation of Life" which has been brought back to the screen of the country by popular demand for a re-showing of the best-selling Fannie Hurst novel of the same title. Starring Claudette Colbert and Warren William, featured roles are taken by Ned Sparks, Alan Hale, Henry Armetta, and Baby Jane along with Rosalind Russell, who plays Miss Colbert's daughter. Warren William is the marine scientist in this picturization of the famous Fannie Hurst novel, and he is loved by both mother and daughter. How this interesting situation is resolved makes this an intensely dramatic and engrossing film, one which is as entertaining today as when it was first released. Also to be shown will be "The Fighting Guardsman," starring Willard Parker and Anita Louise. Most daring rogue in age of daring... most romantic figure in a world of romance... most thrilling picture of a season of thrills. This completes the billing at the State Theater for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Wednesday and Thursday "Scatterbrain," starring lovable Judy Canova as a hill billy of the Ozarks is scheduled for the State Theater. Another favorite cowboy star sings and shoots his way through "Comin' Around the Mountain" with Gene Autry in a prominent role.

Friday and Saturday Charles Starrett in "Sagebrush Heroes" will be shown at the State Theater along with chapter 8 of "The Phantom" and a color cartoon.

EAGLES TO MARK 42ND BIRTHDAY HERE TUESDAY

Eight Charter Members Are To Be Honored at Initiation

The eight living charter members of the Eagle Lodge here will be honored when 42nd anniversary of the aerie here is celebrated Tuesday at the lodge home here.

The eight charter members—S. C. Roberts, Glenn B. Rodgers, P. E. Dempsey, Bert Shimp, Howard R. Hammer, E. L. Miller, John P. Ducey and Ira Walker—will be honored at an initiation ceremony slated for Tuesday night. Altogether, 1,600 Eagles have been invited.

On August 1, 1903, Fayette Aerie 423 Fraternal Order of Eagles, displayed her charter for the first time in the aerie home in the old Music Hall on South Main Street. At that time George L. Saunders took office as the first worthy president with P. E. Dempsey as secretary.

Later the lodge moved its quarters to the Flower's Bakery building on East Court Street and still later moved above the Manhattan Restaurant also on Court Street. From there, the aerie returned to South Main Street in the Campbell block and in 1937 purchased the Odd Fellows home on the corner of Fayette and Market Street which they occupy now.

The last few years have seen great strides in membership climaxed by state and national recognition with W. B. "Doc" Hyer being named state president in 1944. While Hyer was in office, the aerie established a previously unsurpassed record in membership gain and in activity concerning the war effort. The aerie now owns $20,000 worth of War Bonds.

It also has contributed over 300 members to the service. Eleven have been killed and their names are inscribed in bronze. A constant program of correspondence carried on by the lodge has brought more than 2,000 pieces of mail from all over the world. Henton E. Cook, the present president feels the anniversary celebration will in one way preserve the memory of the lodge in behalf of deceased members and for those who now are in the roll.

The complete list of charter members is: C. C. Smith, Saunders, O. Severs, William Hetteshimer, Dempsey, Frank P. Karney, W. E. Reed, Bert Wigginton, Fred Meier, Robert A. Mer-shon, Leroy Smider, J. E. Mott, E. L. Miller, John Kennedy, Ed. E. Bohlett, W. L. Vincent, Homer Gibson, F. S. Mayer, William Hooker.

William Dunn, A. J. Kellhofer, George S. Melvin, Dr. J. L. Worley, T. J. Kelley, George A. Melvin, S. C. Roberts, Joe F. Kerrigan, Oscar Kellhofer, Harry Hays, Charles B. Hooker, Charles D. Tharp, Walter S. Baughn, Thomas Wakeley, John A. Flynn, George F. Jackson, Rodgers, G. W. Giebelhouse.

John Shannon, John W. Sod- fers, W. A. Hyer, Emmet Fortier, Bert Adamson, John Haggard, Finus Sitterlie, Ducey, Elmer L. Tracey, Frank Smith, G. Vecch, Hammer, Walker, Frank McDaniel, C. B. Griffith, W. J. Smith, Shimp and George Shum.

DONALD B. GAMES FUNERAL SERVICES

Services for Donald Berry Games, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Games, were held Friday at the family home on Route 74, near Melon, where a large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their farewell respects.

It was the first death in the immediate family in 50 years.

Rev. P. J. Holfield, of Sardinia, assisted by Rev. Don Whitman, of Cincinnati, conducted the services, and Rev. Whitman sang "Abide With Me" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

There was a wealth of beautiful floral gifts.

Burial was made in the I.O.O.F. Cemetery at Manchester.

The pallbearers were: Carroll Steele, Jack Harper, Martin Stiles, Robert Lawwell, David Dunn, Wilfred Ellis, Gerald Schwickart and Charles Moore.

FOUR TRAFFIC ARRESTS MADE IN 24 HOURS

Police Follow Up Warning Against Reckless Operators

Following up their warning against speeding, unnecessary noise of motor vehicles, and failure to display proper lights, the police made four arrests Friday and Friday night.

Three of the offenders were cited for showing improper lights and were to appear Saturday. John W. Carpenter, city, was charged with reckless operation on West Court Street, at 12:30 Saturday morning, and posted $10 bond for his appearance before Judge R. H. Sites sometime Saturday.

Night police have been particularly cautioned to be on the lookout for speeding truck and auto drivers, and for those making unnecessary noise.

Allen Ferriman, Clinton County, was picked up for failure to show proper lights, and police reported his car in bad condition generally. He posted $10 for appearance Saturday.

Five arrests were made over Friday night for intoxication.

EMPIRE STATE BUILDING, WORLD'S TALLEST, HIT BY PLANE—FIRE FOLLOWS

that "at about 9:50 A. M. there were two terrific explosions. The whole building shook. Then, about a minute later, there was another explosion, not as violent as the first ones."

Police reported eleven floors above and below the 86th floor were in flames and every ambulance unit of Manhattan hospitals was summoned. One occupant of the building said flaming gasoline and fumes poured into the building and the bank of elevators serving the highest floors was knocked out of commission. He was unable to say whether there were any casualties.

James W. Irwin, management consultant and former managing editor of the Chicago Herald Examiner, who has offices on the 75th floor of the building, said he heard the plane coming through the fog and that it struck the north side of the building, above 34th Street, about the 77th or 78th floor.

Irwin said that the hall on the 75th floor was filled with flaming gasoline and fumes and that the tall elevator bank in the building was put out of commission so that people served by that bank could not leave.

Lt. Aubrey B. Condit, an Army pilot who was on the 55th floor of 500 Fifth Avenue, saw the plane strike the building.

He said it was a B-25 Billy Mitchell, which ordinarily would have a crew of three.

Stan Lomax, sports announcer for radio station WOR, saw the crash when his automobile stopped for a traffic light at 37th Street and Fifth Avenue.

He said the plane flew straight down Fifth Avenue and into the building, striking four or five stories below the observation tower.

"There was the damndest ball of fire you ever saw," Lomax said. "It was a tremendous big burst of flame. A wing of the plane shot off to the left toward Madison Avenue. The remainder of the plane stuck right in the building. "Almost two floors the entire width of the building burst into flame. It was an inferno."

FAYETTE COUNTY BOYS IN SERVICE

Lt. Jack White arrived Tuesday noon to spend a 30 day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen White, after having served over a year in Italy with our armed forces.

Sgt. Lloyd N. Smith, of Jeffersonville, is now located on Tinian in the Marianas Islands with the 58th Bombardment Wing, pioneer Superfortress unit which was transferred recently from the India-China theaters to the Pacific to join with the 21st Bomber Command in the intensified aerial blows at the Japanese mainland.

Sgt. Smith is a shop supply clerk in one of the air service groups which perform the maintenance and supply work necessary to keep the big bombers in perfect condition for their long-range operations. He has been serving overseas with the 58th Wing, formerly a unit of the 20th Bomber Command, since the B-29's went into action against Japan more than a year ago.

His mother, Mrs. Sol Smith, resides at Jeffersonville, and has five other sons in the armed forces.

STORAGE AVAILABLE

LONDON—Local elevators announce plenty of storage space for wheat.

WHEAT HARVEST IS NEARLY DONE

Approximately Five Percent Remains in Field

Wheat harvest is about 95 percent complete in Fayette County, according to estimates of various grain dealers, who say that one or two days next week will complete the work, and the county's big wheat crop will be safely taken care of.

All combining had completed before the rain came Saturday, and as a result no further damage could be inflicted on the standing wheat.

A few scattered threshing joes remain to be taken care of to complete the harvest. Ample room for storing the remainder of the grain seemed to be available Saturday.

AUTOMOBILE STOLEN HERE IS ABANDONED

An automobile owned by Mrs. Kenneth Looker, this city, stolen from Herb's Drive Inn about midnight Thursday, was found abandoned in Columbus and reported to the police here late Friday.

So far as known the car was in good condition.

RAINS PROVE TO BE VERY TIMELY

Pastures Were Beginning to Turn Brown

Saturday's showers which were more or less general throughout the community, came at a time when they were badly needed in some parts of the county, as the pastures were beginning to show the need of rain, and were turning brown.

The recent extreme temperatures dried out the soil and almost scorched the grass.

Corn, soybeans and other crops in much of the county were also in need of rain, and a two inch rain in those areas would be welcomed generally by the farmers.

MRS. WILLARD BITZER RESIGNS TEACHING POST

Mrs. Willard Bitzer, for three years a teacher in the Bloomingburg Schools, has resigned her position there.

Mrs. Bitzer said she resigned because she had too much to do at home.

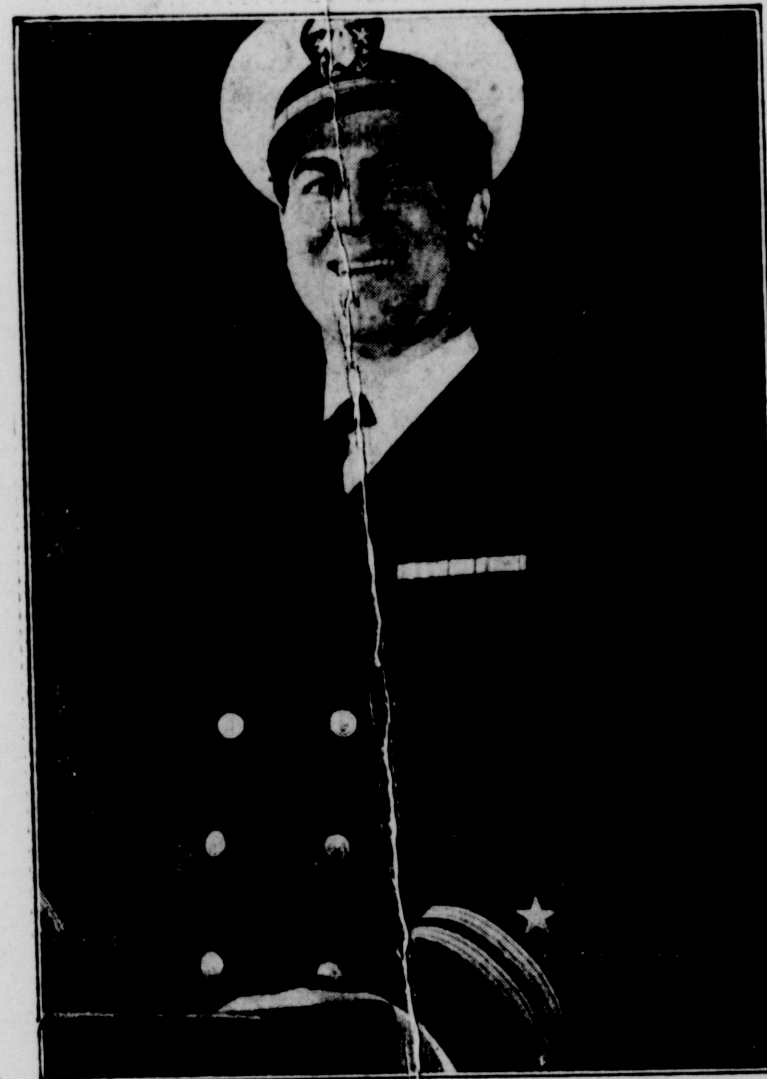

No one has been employed to take Mrs. Bitzer's place as third grade teacher yet. W. J. Hilty, superintendent of county schools, said. He added he did not know of any other resignations.

Lieut. London and his crew were afloat on a rubber raft 18 1/2 hours. It was bitter cold. Yes, colder than that. The icy fingers of death grappled with them until he buried 12 of his buddies in the churning, foaming waves, often mcutning over 100 feet high. God spared him through it all that he might sing the glorious Gospel songs and tell his experience to hundreds of thousands of people—on one occasion over 40,000. Prayers of his Godly father and mother, 3,000 miles away, give us the secret of this wonderful manifestation of the Power of the Almighty God.
